The circulation of the ART-JOURNAL is in excess and upwards, monthly, which in extent far exceeds that of any other work of periodical literature.

GILBERT'S DESCRIPTION OF THE CRYSTAL PALACE,

ITS ARCHITECTURAL HISTORY AND CONSTRUCTIVE MARVELS.
By PETER BERLYN AND CHARLES POWLER, Jun., Esqrs.

 The Engravings depict the various peculiarities and novelties of this wonderful Building, as well as the Machinery, &c., used in its construction.

The combined ambition of the Proprietor, Authors, and Artists, has been to produce a Book worthy of being purchased by every Visitor to the Exhibition, as an attractive and interesting memento.

"It is a complete history of the rise and progress of the Exhibition; the narrative is well written; the illustrations are numerous, and beautifully executed; the information it contains is precisely what the reader wants, and it is a volume fitted to hold a permanent place as the full history of that great work of art, the construction of which is the most wonderful event of our time. We most warmly recommend this history of the Crystal Palace as well worthy of their possession."—The Standard of Freedom.

"The authors have been officially engaged, and they supply several curious facts to the popular narrative; and exhibit, by means of a series of very clever engravings, its gradual progress to a complete state."—The Examiner.

"The history of the Crystal Palace from the first contemplation of the Exhibition to its completion. It is based on public and professional documents, and fully illustrated by plates, showing the construction of the building as well as its appearance; the best designs laid before the committee and buildings previously erected for similar purposes are also given."—The Spectator.

"On all subjects relating to the building, the work embodies a variety of interesting facts which will serve as matter for future reference: the authors give a complete history of Mr. Paxton's noble gigantic design; a general description of the building and its cost; an account of the building and the previous exhibitions in France, Germany, and England; how the glass was manufactured, how the box-gutters, the roof-girders, and the ridges were formed; the whole illustrated by many excellent engravings, in order to convey an idea of the machineries employed to facilitate and bring to perfection this glorious work."—Weekly Dispatch.

Now ready, in 200 pages demy 18mo. with Illustrations, price, in fancy binding, only 1s. 6d. or, post free, 2s., the Second Edition,

DEDICATED TO HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS PRINCE ALBERT,

GILBERT'S POPULAR NARRATIVE of the ORIGIN, HISTORY, PROGRESS, and PROSPECTS of the GREAT INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION, 1851; with a Guide to the Future Rules and Arrangements. By PETER BERLYN.

"A useful record of the history and progressive development of the marvellous incident of our age and nation. Mr. Berlyn's materials are on good authority, and may be relied on. The narrative is sufficiently full in its details for the general public now and hereafter."—Athenæum.

"The volume before us has fair claim to the title of a Narrative of the Exhibition. It commences with an account of such British and Foreign exhibitions as may be supposed to have led to the idea of the great international show of industry to be held in the present year. The author relates it complete account of how the world's industrial products have come to be collected in the present building; gives all the rules and orders of the Commissioners and Executive Committee; special instructions to colonial and foreign exhibitors and Custom-house authorities; and such other information as renders it a really useful volume of practical information to all exhibitors and visitors at the exhibition."—Examiner.

"Within a small compass we have here gathered together all that is interesting in connection with the great undertaking of the present year—an undertaking which must form the most important chapter in the world's history. We are bound to say that the work has been judiciously done, and the result is a very satisfactory review of all that has been effected in the way of Industrial Exhibitions."—Literary Gazette.

"A publication prompted by the Great Exhibition; it is a plain and business like affair, giving a good deal of information upon various subjects connected with the comfort of visitors, as well as directions for sight-seeing."—Spectator.

"This useful Book contains the most complete information connected with the localities, customs, public buildings, amusements, and resources of the capital city of this kingdom, and for travellers or foreigners we say it is an indispensable work, if they desire to possess an accurate knowledge of London during their visit to the Great Exhibition."—Morning Advertiser.
